

As a flight attendant for United Airlines, I strongly believe that the use of cell phones in flight will be nothing but trouble. All one needs to do is walk through a public area (like an airport) and observe and hear all of the people actively using their cell phones. Now take this noise and put it in the confined area of an airplane cabin. Mix in people trying to work, people trying to sleep, people having conversations with the people they are flying with, people trying to watch the movie or listen to music or even people just trying to have some quiet time. It is a mixture that is sure to ignite! Please do not fail to consider the safety and security of flight crews and passengers.
